One of the highlights of travelling in Russia is visiting Moscow, the capital and largest city in the country, home to the Kremlin and St. Basil's Cathedral. In St. Petersburg, visitors can admire the beautiful architecture of the Hermitage Museum, the Winter Palace and the Church of the Saviour on Spilled Blood. Another must-see destination in Russia is Lake Baikal, the largest and deepest lake in the world. Thanks for your email. I'm always happy to receive messages from you.

It's so nice that you are curious about my visit to Saint Petersburg. I'm travelling with my sister and my friend. Luckily, we've managed to book a hotel right in the city centre at a very cheap price. I hope we'll manage to visit lots of sights. First, we're going to see the Hermitage, then we're going on a boat tour along rivers and canals. After this, we're planning a guided tour around St. Isaac's Cathedral & Colonnade. I also really hope to see Opening bridges and Nevsky Prospect at night. I will send you photos when I'm there.

By the way, how's your mom doing? Is she going to have a holiday? What does she say about your trip?

Write back soon.

Writing Task 38. Task 1 answers:

People use different means of transport to move in cities depending on their needs. I am currently doing a project on popular means of transport in Zetland. I have found a table with some results of a relevant survey. I believe this data is (these data are) important to consider.

According to the table, the majority of the respondents ride a bike in Zetland (55%). 15% of those surveyed use a car. Only one tenth of the people ride a scooter (10%).

Interestingly, approximately twice as many of the respondents go by bus (13%) as those who prefer to ride a motorbike (7%). It seems that some Zetlanders like to do something on the way to school or work, which is possible on a bus. Riding a motorbike could be dangerous, which is probably why it is the least favourable option.

Using public transport is very convenient but there is a problem that can arise. It is usually much too overcrowded, especially in rush hours. To tackle the problem, one should use early or late buses, trains or other means of public transport to avoid being surrounded by many people.

In conclusion, I believe that public transport is of utmost importance in cities. It helps reduce traffic because many people can use one vehicle. It also helps to get to work or school faster because of fixed public transport lines and trains that run on schedule.
